

The Lion and the carpenter

Once upon a time, there was a great famine. Animals and people were not getting food to eat.

A carpenter took pity on him and decided to help him.

The carpenter saw them coming together and got scared.

Do not trust others blindly

Just as the lion was deceived by listening to the advice of the crow and the fox, similarly dubious investment tips don't help investors. One must use his own judgement before making any investment decision. Always consult a good financial advisor who goes a long way in helping you with the right advice for your money. Consult a financial advisor who is 1. Transparent 2. Has the right pedigree 3. Qualified and acts in your best interest.

An Investor education initiative